Once upon a time in the sea of seas, there lived a family of waves. Within this family there was a special wave, known as Little Wave. Being little meant living under the tide and always watching bigger waves doing everything. He wanted to do something big so everyone would respect him. Looking up from his seabed, he couldn't help overhearing the big waves talk about Rip Tide, the most famous and strongest of all the waves. Rip was very strong and he could go right up to the shore and bring anything that got caught in his swell back to sea...
